Greetings!

Well, I am officially 55 years old
 What a great day I had
 I stayed true to my custom of no cooking
 In the morning, I met up with a couple of Synergy friends at Turning Point, located in Pier Village of Long Branch
 A busy, bustling cozy place even on a cold, snowy February Saturday morning
 I enjoyed stuffed french toast served with blueberries and mangos
 Could of used a few more in my opinion
 For lunch, I called my bestest friend to see if what she was doing
 Went to Bella's and grabbed a couple of subs for us
 Sat with her and her daughter for awhile, smacking on subs, chips and of course a glass of ice cold chocolate milk for me (Thanks, Andy for the tip)
 Bella's absolutely came through with the fresh bread, mozzarella cheese and lots of oil & vinegar like I wanted
 Then for dinner, I met up with my brother and his gal
 We were on our way to The Bayou Cafe in Manasquan, where I couldn't wait to sink my taste buds into some crawfish
 But we were pushed for time as we had movie tickets
 So, we went to Sister Sue's
 A quaint charming place located on Bond Street off Bangs Avenue in Asbury Park
 I had "savory melt in your mouth" oxtails, brown rice and a delightful creamy coleslaw with a caribbean twist
 Service was impeccable and wonderful
 The atmosphere delightful
 A special birthday treat of aloo pie was served as an appetizer
 A wonderful flaky turnover stuffed with spicy potato (but not too spicy)
 Then we went and saw "No Country for Old Men"
 Don't worry, I won't tell you the ending
 Let's just say except for Tommy Lee Jone's always impeccable performance if it wins anything, somebody knows somebody
