Lorraine Stone continues her performances in the landmark play,
For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow was Unfurled

NJ-Maryland-Pennsylvania

For Colored Girls, a landmark play in the anthology of African American literary and performance tradition, is storytelling at its best and at its rawest, as seven women speak frankly, passionately and with lots of humor, pathos, and soul-searching lament about their life journeys.

This latest production is being launched by the newly minted Newark Repertory Theater Company, which is committed to bringing quality stage productions that speak to the human spirit to public audiences throughout Greater Newark.

Lorraine who is a performance artist is a native of Asbury Park, N.J, currently residing in Eatontown. She has been featured in many productions of the Dunbar Repertory Company, including her role as Bessie Delany in "Having Our Say; the Delany Sisters First 100 Years and Lena Younger, in "A Raisin in the Sun. She also appeared in Pearl Cleage's, "Song for Coretta and "Black Nativity", both Dunbar Productions.
